Trolley Talks. No. 24.

How You Can Help

In the preceding talks we have tried to explant certain matters concerning this system and its relation to the people of Colorado Springs which previously had not received proper consideration.

We have discussed our service, history and public policy not for the purpose of "blowing our own trumpet"-but to emphasize the fact that we are earnestly trying to treat the public with absolute fairness and to advance the interests of this region whenever we can consistently

Today we propose to tell you how you can help us, but first we wish to call to your attention a few facts concerning present day conditions which have an important bearing upon our business.

This is an age when one hears a great deal about the high cost of living. Some writers term it "the cost of high living." But irrespective of whether you are of a facctious or serious turn of mind, the fact remains that nearly all things cost more today than they did ten or fifteen years ago.

The goods asks more for his goods; the clothier more for his clothes; the shoe dealer more for his shoes: the operator more for his coal; the landlord more for his rent; the doctor more for his fees; the cab driver more for his cab. etc.

But has the street car company sevenced its prices?

Look back fourteen years for a fair and accurate answer to that question. And then consider traffic conditions here today.

The me faces are being charged by this street _ r an . pany now as when Mr. Stratton bought it. Since 1901, however, more than two million dollars in actual cash has been put into this property by the Stratton interests. And the great bulk of this money has gone into improvements.

Moreover, this street car company now pays more for its rails, more for its ties, more for its cars and machinery and more for the wages of its employees than it ever did before yet it has made no increases in the fares that were charged fourteen years ago when the service was not one half as good as it is today.

Now here is where you can help use

The town that boosts its enterprises is the town that is going to grow, and a growing town means increased business for everyone. There-

If you hear someone unjustly finding fault with the street car company, call him to one side and ask him a few pertinent questions:

Ask him if he has ever stopped to consider how much the street car system of Colorado Springs has done for him what increased. value it has placed upon his business or his home what conveniences it extends to him new as compared to the old horse car service of twenty years ago. And then tell him this:

"The street car company here is trying to play the game square. Help it slow! It has faults and it admits them, but it's trying to correct them, and it is correcting them as fast as its revenues will permit. It courts honest criticism, but there's a difference between honest erlticism and knocking."

If you've got a legitimate grouch against the street car company, write a letter to its officials or, better yet, go see them. They'll do the right thing by you. But don't stand around and 'knock.'

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION

ONE more graduating class goes out from the Colorado Springs High School, and the members have the congratulations of many friends upon the fact that they have revelved from the community all that It can do to fit them for useful careers. This will end the school days of many, but Is only a stepping stone to higher education for others. This period is really the most beautiful in life, "where the brook and river mest," because no matter how many more "commencements" a scholar may participate in never again will he know quite the keen satisfaction of this first one, passed through at a time when youth sings with ambilion and the horizon is aglow with

It is a fine body of youth that grows up in our local High School. The training is so thorough and excellent that Mivate schools have not gained the foothold here that they have in other places. The private school has its place in the world, for there are boys and girls who must find homes while getting an education, and others who are not fitted physically to brush against the rugged activities of public schools.

In a measure private school pupils are to be pitted, because their lives are barren of something that cannot be fitted into life In any other way. Against the local High School cannot be waged any of the arguments that sometimes are used successfully regarding public schools. The boys and girls who graduate here are men and women in mental and moral stature, and well-informed, even though they may not have passed their seventeenth year.

There is a spirit abroad among the High School pupils that is fostered by the policy which permits them largely to govern themselves as a student body. It has created an honor system and made them dignified. Never was it better exemplified than at the annual elections last week. Although spirited, these were conducted in fairness and apenuess, and no ill-will was left. In the olden school days the boys and girls were wild with joy to get away from the grueling enind. It is safe to say that not a boy or girl who finishes the course at the local high school this year, but turns with longing regret to the familiar places that shall know him no more as a part of serooi lic-

Somewhere lies the duty of preventing this.

The most fascinating thing that a plainsman finds when he comes to the mountains le a roaring mountain stream, especially if it is crystal clear and tumbles over the rocks. The Boiling Pountain and the two tributarles that enter it, at Manitou are as naturally beautiful as any streams in the world, but they are not beautiful when made an open sewer filled with tin cans and dead

"RAMONA," AND ITS AUTHOR

THE woman who secured dramatic rights in Helen Hunt Jackson's great novel, Ramona, has sued the publisher and a film company to whom the moving picture rights were sold. She claims that she is damayed because the number of readers of the book will be lessened. It will be a new fact to most people that the book ever was dramatized, because it did not have much success in that form.

Whether "silent dramatization" of the book will deter people from reading if or not is for the jury that tries the case to judge. Judging from examples of "movie" dramatization that have been shown here il will not inspire many to read it.

. Pity it is that everyone does not read Ramona," because it is a most compelling story, driving the reader to burn the midnight oil and weep with the unhappy Mission Indians. Also it is the most faithful picture that probably ever will be drawn of the fading Spanish life of California.

When one remembers the admiration and almost worship of Mrs. Jackson in Southern California it seems at times as if the people of this region have not been quite true to her memory. This was her home, the place she loved and chose for her last resting place. It was the scene of at least one of her minor stories, and she wrote of the Garden of the Gods and other bits of scenery in a manner that has not been excelled. The cairn on Chevenne Mountain where each admirer who visits the former grave of the genius places a stone is a most poetic idea, but some day there will be an arch or monument erected by the townspeople to the memory of this talented Cutter Academy is a memory. It was the preparatory school of Colorado College, but had outlived its usefulness, so far as helping the greater school goes, It will be a pleasant memory and its going will be regreted by many outside of its late sphere of influence. That the academy is no longer needed speaks mightily for our local public school system, which has been built up to where it is a feeder to the college that cannot be excelled. Cutler academy building now can be used for college purposes directly, and the efforts of the faculty will increase the teaching force of the parent institution.

In view of the eyangelistic services about to be started here it may interest a good many people to know that there is a plan on foot to build a church at the exposition grounds of the San Francisco fair and maintain evangelistic services. The plan is proposed by Rev. H. H. Bell, who founded and built the United Presbyterian church in this city.

We are looking for some means to reduce taxes as well as insurance rates. A study of cities where a salvage corps, or insurance parrol, is maintained shows that they have largely solved the fire insurance rate problem. have seen roof fires where the roof of the building was left in a dilapidated condition and exposed to the elements after the fire was extinguished, so the goods therein were damaged in addition to the ravages of the blaze.

This is not an expensive proposition as compared with the results to policy holders. A company of seven trained men could more than earn the running expenses of such an organization; the not be in the least antagonistic to the fire department, but many times of great assistance to them,

I am writing this from practical experience. A own of this size should take a step forward. I might add that the expenses could be divided thus; certain percentage from the fire insurance compaplee doing business in the city and the city paying their proportion. This is a matter that should be promptly acted upon

Paper begs and small ploces of paper were always put in the upper drawer in the pantry; very large pieces of wrapping paper went into the sitting room closet; cotton cloth was kept in the top panity drawer behind the door, while flannel and linen cloth, being scarcer and more in demand, were safely tucked away in a big bag in mother's closet.

The sacrifice of 20 American lives was in vain and the slaughter of the Mexicans seems simost wanton in view of the facilities now accorded Huerta to obtain the supplies at another port when Vera Cruz was closed

The bloody blundering which marked our toleration of Villa and our connivence in the equipment of his army has been transferred to Vera Cruz with Huerta for its beneficiary. No other interpretation can be placed on the eccentric action of our government, which is consistent only in its inconsistency. It in part reinstated the embargo on arms as against Villa and next declared Tampico, on its capture by the "Constitutionalists," an open port. thereby giving Villa every facility for importing what was denied him at El Paso: it fought a battle to prevent the landing of arms for Huerta at Vera Cruz and now permits them to be put ashore at Puerto Mexico. Already the excuse is forthcoming that under the "armistice" there is no way of preventing Huerta from getting in all fue military supplies he needs. The ordinary understanding is that an armistice compels both sides to remain in the status they held at its opening until it is officially terminated. The intimation is that this is an "extraordinary armistics, which may well be the case, since our war with Mexico is an "extraordinary" war. Even if we call it "military occupation." it still remains extraordinary. We seize the landing port of Mexico. drive out the Mexican ga. ison and slay Mexican soldiers and civilians and still we are not making war on Mexico. The origin of the difficulties, which were to be settled by our action at Vera Cruz was and our flect was withdrawn from the harbor, leaving the rescue of American refugees to the humanitarian zeal of British and German commanders. Vera Cruz was invaded to bring Huerta 'to his senses, but considering that he has now got the atras the appearance of which precipitated the appearing it looks as if some persons in of cultivated land in this country. #### ORIGIN OF TIP"

W.J. Lampton in the New York Sun-When the man at the Broadway restaurant table had paid tribute to the hireling who had waited on him he MACK'S sulphur bases 760: 1 for the birding who had swatted on him he Chiropody, as vege M 1666 2240 inquired of his companion how that forthat payment had ever got the name of "tip." Some men might have been ignorant on so abstruce a subject, but this one was from Beston.

"That's easy," he replied with Bosdays in England it was customary to cone Pres. 1818 Market St. San have a contribution box nailed to the wall where those who had been served could deposit a penny or two for the benefit of the servitors. This bore the inscription. To insure promptness. Hence the pennies deposited there be came known as 'tips." See ""
